HOPALONG CABBIE

GUNNING FOR TROUBLE

By Al Peckar

WINDY DALEY was the most worried camp cook in all of North Mesquite. Soon he knew that his seven-year-old hero worshipper Larry would find him out for the fraud he was. Oh, not that he had done anything really bad. His only wrong had been exaggerating just a morsel in order to live up to the excited opinion the best young son had of him. Larry was at that age when the capture of outlaws was the most fascinating subject in the world. So it was only natural that he should expect the one man he preferred to all the wranglers on his Dad's ranch to regale him with tales of felling down desperadoes. All well and good—except that Windy Dailey had never fired a gun or sipped in his life.

Windy was a conscientious enough chef. His aim was unerring inasmuch that he never hit the target long before his friendship with Larry had begun, he had abandoned the wearing of no-guns. There just wasn't any point in it for one who used them so poorly. The only thing remotely resembling shooting was to be found in his possession these days: were the wooden models of famous sheriff's guns he exhibited for Larry.

The old cook did have a talent for this last as the model currently in work attested. A copy of the hogleg made famous by Wild Bill Hickok, it looked almost as real as the one that had turned many an outlaw. But actually it was no more dangerous than Windy himself.

Windy looked loudly at the little boy who had fallen asleep in a corner chair at the cookhouse, then sighed and bent back to his work. Deftly, his hands scratched a few potatoes in the barrel in faithful imitation of the real and famous gun. Larry would enjoy this one! It was a good thing, too, for exposure was galloping Windy's way with all the deceased a stampeding Laramie herd.

He recalled all too vividly the day his undoing had begun. He and Larry had been alone in the cookhouse and as usual Larry had begged for more extra accounts of Windy's daring. Windy had been only too happy to oblige—and carried away with his own enthusiasm had taken Larry with him on a flight of fancy to the day he and his old saddle mate, Buffalo Bill, had fared down an entire gang of bank robbers. This had been a particularly good story—and Windy didn't hear the scrape of the foreman, Sage Casey, as he came in to check a pre-grub sandwich.

Enthralled, Sage had listened as readily as Larry, and broke in only when Windy had paused for breath and fresh ammunition to feed Buffalo Bill.

"Never did hear of you being such a powerful hand with a hogleg alone that," drawled Sage.

Appalled, Windy wanted to face the voice that hovered down. He didn't care for himself, he was used to ridicule. But the flaring glimpses of disillusionment that had swept into Larry's face as the always serene child called Windy. He couldn't let that boy find his hero was a faker. In time, when Larry was older he'd confuse himself, and they'd laugh about it together. All this raced through his frenzied mind as his eyes made mute appeal to Sage for mercy. Well, he had carried it off that time. Sage had fallen in with the game, but had passed the word to the others in the bunkhouse. From then on, Windy's nights had been made hellish by being forced to recount over and over again for the aroused widders his fictitious tales of daring. Yet for Larry's sake he gladly took the abuse, happy that the boy had not been hurt.

But today there had been the view! Ah, yes, the view! It hadn't been such a bad view, Windy still thought. Yet it had resulted in inflicting the always uncertain torques of Sage Casey. An angry Casey had not hesitated to employ the one weapon he could use against Windy—exposure to Larry!

There hadn't been much time—morning, Larry had still been in bed and Sage was needed on the range. But the tortured hours of the day fled all too swiftly for Windy. Soon he and Larry would not be the only ones left on the ranch. Minutes were now and Casey and the boys would come whooping and howling on to show up Windy for what he really was—an old camp cook with a big imagination and a bigger tongue.

Windy sighed and sadly carved another notch on the model of Wild Bill's famous gun.

That dust down the lantern must be the boys now! Seemed a little early for them to be riding home, but then they were probably anxious to get on with the fun of showing him up. Might just as well get his gear packed. Say, maybe that would be an idea! He could check off the ranch quietly without waiting for the guffaws of Coney and the tears of Larry. No by gum! Windy Deaky wouldn't slink off! He might be a braggart, but he sure wasn't a coyote. He had promised Larry the model of Wild Bill's gun, and by Kin Carson's beard, he was going to get it. Another few minutes and it would be finished—but the reflection was torn in the thought that Windy Deaky would be finished, too, in the eyes of a disillusioned Larry.

Say, that dust was being kicked up by only one horse. And a strange one at that. Windy couldn't recall ever having seen a coyote that odd when other animals thrall past before. Certainly not one that had obviously been ridden as hard. Shucks, that was no way for an hunter to treat a mount. Maybe Windy was only a cook, but even he knew better than that. Knew everything except to keep his mouth shut.

He watched the rider dismount and head toward the backhouse yard. Sure looked like that fellow had come a far piece—and on a powerful horse, too. There was something wrong about the way he walked. Hunter wouldn't keep dartering nervous glances behind them. Then Windy got it. This was an outlaw on the run, who had chosen the deserted ranch as a likely spot to gather the water necessary to his flight.

"Larry," Windy whispered, and his anxious tone woke the boy and brought him bustling over. "Look see, there's a wrong hunter outside. Just keep quiet and we'll be safe enough in here. Probably doesn't figure there's anyone about. Let him fill his canteen from the well and ride on."

"But, Windy," the boy protested, "there's your chance to show me how you really catch an outlaw. Why don't you get him?"

"Why didn't he get him?" Windy drew at the thought. Imagines himself slowly creep back standing up to someone who was so evidently a desperado. Oh, no, not Windy. But then another idea shouldered aside his animal fear. Here was a profitable way out. Why not go out and face the outlaw? He was certain to fall before the blazing guns, but Larry would never know him for a braggart. Even Sage Casey would not expose a man who had died bravely.

Then, strangely, Windy found himself walking through the dark. Wishing to what he knew was certain doom, but yet his stride was purposeful as he approached the outlaw. Nothing betrayed the fear within him as he tipped the stranger's shoulder. To the last he stood bravely looking into the deadly eyes and watching the grimy hand dart for a holster.

But then suddenly the touch of his gun fell to the ground and raised his arms fearfully shown his head. Startled Windy looked at something he never expected to see—a man who was more frightened of the prospect of gun play than he was! Almost without thinking he took the rope that little Larry had thrust into his hands and tied his captive.

Sage Casey and the bands rode in on schedule, heading in darkness as they spotted the figures of Windy and Larry in the moonlight back yard. But their shouts quickly turned to whistles of admiration as they also observed the other figure bound hand and foot.

IT was Sage Casey who found which foot "Ted Corey" he exclaimed. "The damnest ganglester in the Territory—captured by a cook!"

"You don't fool me none," Corey answered. "He's no cook. I rode against a lot of bad men in my time, but I dare say to tangle with any hombre who can wear a Wild Bill Hicken baggy with seven stitches."

Windy darted an excited glance at the wooden model gun that in the confusion he had thrust in his belt. Sage Casey looked, too, then laughed in understanding. Throwing an arm about the old cook's shoulder, he said, "Let's you, me and Larry go have some of that good stew. And don't forget we want to hear more stories of your gun fights, Sage." He punctuated the sentence with a sly wink at Windy. There was no longer any danger of Larry being lost.

I'VE BEEN FORGOTTEN TO GO TO CAMP
FOR A LONG TIME!"

"I'M AFRAID YOU'LL
STILL HAVE TO KEEP YOURSELF PRESENT!
YOU WON'T HAVE TIME TO GO TO THIS ONE."

"HEY,
HOP!
HOP!"

"HAVE YOU FORGOTTEN, HUSBAND?
THE MEXICAN GOVERNMENT HAS ORDERED US TO BE ON THE LOOKOUT FOR ANYONE WHO MIGHT BE HANG-GLIDING ACROSS TO THE DESERT
ACROSS THE MEXICAN BORDER.
YOU CAN'T DO THAT AND GO TO THE CARNIVAL AT THE SAME TIME."

"I WATCH THE NORTH PASS
AND THE SOUTH PASS. YOU GUARD
THE SOUTH PASS AND MAKE SURE YOU DON'T LEAVE YOUR POST FOR ANY REASON."

"OH, HOPPY,
BUT BEING A
COUNTRY GARD
TAKES THE FUN
OUT OF MY LIFE."

SCENARIOS AT THE CARNIVAL STREETS---

SO FAR WE GOOD HERE, WE GOT TWO THOUSAND WITH THE FURNISHING WE'RE GOING TO BRING TO THE CARNIVAL. NOW THE QUESTION IS CAN WE GET OUT?

WE'LL GET OUT ALL RIGHT, HOOBOY, NO ONE WILL EVER SUSPECT THAT THE CARNIVAL IS JUST A TRICK FOR OUR SASSY EYES!

BEFORE, EVEN IF THEY DO, NO ONE WOULD THINK OF BRINGING THE CARNIVAL TO THE CARNIVAL, AND UNLESS THEY AND THE ARMY THEY CAN'T MOVE ANYTHING AGAINST US!

I KNOW WE'RE SAFE ENOUGH, WE'LL RUN THE CARNIVAL, ONE DAY NO ONE WILL GET LUCKY, AND THEN WE'LL BE ON OUR WAY AGAIN! COME WE'VE GOT TO GO, IT'LL BE A CATCH!

SHORTLY AFTER, AN HENRIETTE HEADS FOR HIS PEARL

WOW! ONE DAY ONLY! AND I HAVEN'T BEEN AT A CARNIVAL IN YEARS!

I DON'T KNOW THERE'LL BE ANY FUN, IF I DO IN THE CITY, A FEW HUNDRED!

WELL, LOOK WHO JUST CAME IN? IT'S A DEPUTY! HE MUST BE HERE TO US!

DON'T GET HOOKED, HE MAY BE A DEPUTY, BUT HE'S NOT A DEPUTY! WE'VE GOT TO GET AND GO! FROM THE CARNIVAL, SO WE CAN TAKE CARE OF HIM!

WELCOME TO THE CARNIVAL, DEPUTY! NOW ABOUT COMING INTO THE OFFICE, SO I CAN GIVE YOU A LITTLE OF THE BEST ATTRIBUTES!

NO THANKS, I'VE GOT TO GO! I'LL GO AWAY ALREADY, I'VE A NEW HUNTER!

WELL, A DEPUTY, ONE? IF THERE WERE ONLY SOME MORE TO GET NO ONE CAN BE IN THE CARNIVAL, IT'LL BE A CATCH!

I DON'T THINK I CAN GET OUT OF THE CARNIVAL, BUT I THINK I CAN GET OUT OF THE CARNIVAL, IT'LL BE A CATCH!

HOPALONG CASSIDY

STARRING
WILLIAM BOYD

and THE LAST
OF THE BLOUX

DEATH FLEW RAPIDLY AS THE HORSEMAN AND GUN-TOGGED TROOP OF BRAGGERS HURLED TOWARD THE CRASHING AND BURNING DESTRUCTION OF THE BLOUX TRIBE. BUT ONE BLOUX MAN ESCAPED—A MAN WITH A BRIDGE AGAINST THE WHITE RUSH FOR HAVING TAKEN HIS LAND—WHICH MADE IT EVEN MORE DIFFICULT FOR THE BRAGGERS. HOPALONG CASSIDY TO RESCUE THE MAN AND TO FIND A WAY TO THE RIVER.

OUTSIDE THE TWO-DECK JAILHOUSE—

—BUT UNTIL THEY REALIZE IT ALONG WITH THE FACT THAT THE WHITE MAN WANTS TO BE PROTECTED, THE GOVERNMENT THINGS ITS BEST TO LEAVE THEM ALONE.

IF THAT'S THE WAY THE GOVERNMENT WANTS IT, THAT'S THE WAY IT'LL BE.

MEANWHILE, THE CATTLE-GRABBERS' FEET IS THE HILL!

THE BUCK HAVE ALL THE GOOD LUCK, CHEP TEND. THEY KNOW, EACH GIVEN THE BEST SHAPES LAND AROUND HERE.

THE BUCK DO NOT KNOW TO STORM, CADDY, BUT THEY HAVE MADE IT EASY FOR THEM TO BE COOK.

COOK? HOW COOK?

THE BUCK HAVE THE BEST BLOOD TO ALL, ANY WHITE MAN WANTS THE BUCK, WHEN WHITE MEANS NO WHITE WILL BE AGAIN.

IT ALSO MEANS NO WHITE WILL BE ALLOWED TO KNOW THEY WE HAVE WIPED OUT THE BUCK THERE AND TAKEN OVER THEIR LAND AND COUNTRY.

THOSE ARE GREAT WORDS, CHEP TEND. HOW WILL WE DO IT?

WE WILL DO IT AS WE HAVE DONE EVERY-THING ELSE—BY OBLIVIOUS RUN; WE WILL KICK THEM OFF SEAS AND DESTROY THEM; PREPARE FOR BATTLE!

LOOK, AT THE BUCK, RESERVATION—

I HAVE DISCOVERED THAT THE RESERVATION GIVEN US IS COOK LAND; PREPARE, BUCKS, BECAUSE IT IS TIME TO FIGHT WITH THE WHITE MAN.

MOVIE, CHEP! ALL PREPARED ARE COOK, BUCKS. IF YOU DO NOT FIGHT TO THE DEATH OF THE TRICK, I WILL LEAVE THE BUCK.

SEVERELY—

WE OLD MEN ARE TALKING, AND APPROACHES?

USED IT IS THE BUCK, PREPARED TO BETTER FIGHT OUR BUCKS.
